Social and Personal

THE piano recital at the Woman's Club yesterday afternoon by John Powell formally opened the club for the season, and the parlors were filled to overflowing with a most enthusiastic gathering for the occasion. Mr. Powell, who has been absent abroad for a number of years, studying music, gave a Liszt afternoon, and as the numbers selected for the program are rarely played, gave a detailed explanation of the construction and development of the theme of each.

Preceding the first number on the program, Mr. Powell said that music in its deepest sense, was the expression of emotion, and asked his audience to listen with its hearts instead of its ears; to feel and not hear the music of the wonderful master's compositions. He stated that "Concerto Pathétique" was a contrast between two very strong emotions, strong of rhythm and construction, its principal theme the triumph of love, and one of the very greatest works of all time.

The second number, "Mephisto Waltz," was simply an episode used to typify one of the moments in which the devil endeavored to give Faust his "perfect moment." It is immensely realistic and was very powerfully demonstrated.

He concluded his program with "Concerto A Major," very brilliant and wonderfully constructed, with a very majestic theme. He said that the most distinguishing feature of Liszt's music is his development of theme, with its variety of color, and yet with the fundamental unity still preserved.

Mr. Powell is a natural musician and plays with his whole heart and soul. He plays the purest, clearest, sweetest notes, and with a world of humanity in his music, but his technique, which is wonderful, is merely subordinate to the soul of the man. Mr. Powell is such a genius that the ordinary rules do not apply, and simply disarms all criticism.

Miss Myrtle Redford played the orchestral parts of the program, and Mrs. Smith Brokenbrow was chairman of the afternoon. Mrs. Howard Hough poured coffee, assisted by Mrs. Dana Rucker and Mrs. Metcalf, and Mrs. William Anderson presided at the tea table, assisted by Mrs. Lewis H. Blair and Miss Liza Harvey.

The bridesmaids, Misses Russell Blanton, of Virginia, attended the bride as dame of honor, and wore white grenadine over pink satin. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. Miss Hazel Pieroli, who was bridesmaid, wore a costume similar to the matron of honor, and also carried pink roses.

The dwellings on the north side have been razed, and work on the structure will begin at once. The present freight depot will be torn down and the site covered with general delivery tracks. [Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Both will appear on the same grounds, a stand having been provided on the circus grounds, from which Colonel Roosevelt is to address the people.

It is believed the colonel will have the larger crowd. The Board of Trade has arranged for special trains and low rates on all the railroads, and it is known that delegations are coming here from portions of five States to greet Colonel Roosevelt. His train will be due to arrive here at 10 A. M., and he will probably remain here until noon.

PINCHOT SEES EFFORT TO CROWD BAND-WAGON

Declares Conversions to Progressiveness Without Convictions Have Begun.

WOULD HAVE PROOF
Ousted Forester Prophesies Speedy Triumph of Insurgency.

Nashville, Tenn., October 3.—Clifford Pinchot, head of the National Conservation Association, arrived here yesterday from a long tour of the Middle and Far West to attend the annual convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. When asked for his views on the political situation in the country that he has just traversed, Mr. Pinchot made the following statement:

"The essential facts in the West as I see them, are the weakening of parties, due to a genuine interest in popular government and the spread of Progressive ideas.

"The defeat of such men as Hull, of Iowa, and Tawney, in Minnesota, and the overwhelming victory of La Follette, in Wisconsin, the successful fight California is making against the political domination of the Southern Pacific, the demand for direct popular government in Arizona, the repudiation of Ballinger by his own city, county and State, and especially the fact that the conservation idea has swept the West—all these are typical signs of the Progressive advance.

"Nothing Can Stop It.
"Of course there have been and there will yet be reverses in the course of progress. But nothing can stop or even long delay a movement which is based on the insistent demand of the people for honesty and open political methods and a square deal for all men. The West is through with the subsidized man and the hole-and-corner methods under which the machinery of government has been steadily misused for the benefit of the special interests and the professional politicians.

"The people of the West, and the Mississippi Valley believe in protection, but they are not greatly interested in defenses of the tariff based on its alleged virtues as a revenue producer. It is no justification of the tariff to say that it pays. This government is not reduced to the necessity of raising its revenues by schedules which rob the people. The essential fact about the tariff, as the people see it, is that it is unjust, a moral wrong, written by the servants of special privilege for the benefit of their masters, and intended, not to help the small man make a living, but to help the big man make an exorbitant profit. No amount of statistics will conceal or modify that fact or make any schedule of the Payne-Aldrich tariff honest.

"I do not believe that the West or the East either, for that matter, labors under any illusion whatever as to the real character of the tariff or the way it was made.

"Leaving the tariff bill out of account, there was much good legislation passed by Congress last spring, and the Progressives were mainly responsible. The West has never been so close to where the candidate belongs for the useful laws passed at the last session of Congress. Indeed, I think the whole country knows by now that the Wickersham railroad bill and Alaska bill were both indefensible. The Ballinger conservation bills, although they contained some good features, taken from previous measures, were as a whole the obvious product of dense ignorance and conspicuous bad judgment to say the least.

"The reason why good came out of the last session was that some men in the House and Senate asserted the dignity of their representative office and refused to pass bills under whip and spur until they had been amended in the public interest.

"Fought Good Fight.
"Men like Dooliver, Cummins, La Follette, Beveridge, Bristow, Murdock and Norris fought the good fight for the people and they won. They earned and they are receiving in the East and West alike, full credit for the good laws they gave us. Not the least of their claims upon the gratitude of our people is the fact that they destroyed the Cannon-Aldrich legislative ring and drove out of the special interests from their first line of defense.

"In some few places the administration bills and the administration Senators were a help and not a hindrance. Any credit they won thereby, they should have freely. And the West gives them all the credit that is their due. But in this whole matter one may look almost in vain for any evidence that the Regulars and their

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Raleigh, N. C., October 3.—In the Police Justice's Court, at 11 o'clock this morning, Editor Josephus Daniels and State Senator W. B. Jones appeared and made personal statements relative to their sensational encounter on Fayetteville Street, with the result that Justice Stronach suspended judgment without even requiring either belligerent to pay any costs in the case. Senator Jones told the court frankly that he made the attack on Editor Daniels because of repeated newspaper criticism of him and his father. Mr. Daniels also made a personal statement as to the features of the street fight. Justice Stronach said he realized the provocation that for some time past had prodded Senator Jones toward such action, and at the same time he wanted to impress the fact that the public streets were not the place to air one's grievances in this manner. Furthermore, he did not wish to take any action that would seem to indicate a license for attacks to be made on newspaper men at will by men who might think that they had grievances. However, taking all phases of the case in consideration, he would, he said, suspend judgment. It was after this judgment of the court, when J. W. Hindsdale, as a friend of Senator Jones, asked to know the costs in the case.

that the justice stated that the court would enter no costs in the case. The courtroom was well filled with spectators, who seemed very generally to approve the action of the court.

There was also a charter for the Crane Plumbing Company, Fayetteville, capital $10,000 authorized, and $3,000 subscribed, by V. H. Crane and others.

Held for Deserter.
J. Mitchell Bruton, who was for a long while a conductor on the Raleigh trolley cars, was brought here this morning from South Carolina and lodged in jail on the charge of abandoning and failing to support his wife, who lives here. Bruton was arrested a week ago in Chesterfield, S. C., and a requisition was procured for his extradition.

Withdraws From Race.
Something of a stir was made this morning in Wake county political circles by the announcement of Charles U. Harris that he will not make the race on the independent Democratic ticket for the State Senate in opposition to Dr. E. W. Sykes, of the Wake Forest College faculty, who heads the regular Democratic ticket named in the sensational June primaries. Mr. Harris was nominated in the independent Democratic mass-meeting Saturday, appeared before the convention and accepted the place assigned him in a speech, in which he assailed the Daniels-Bailey wing of the party, and pledged a fight to the finish. He made the statement early this morning just before leaving for Greensboro, that he would come off the independent ticket.

"The Corporation Commission made an order this morning rejecting the plans submitted by the Atlantic Coast Line for passenger station improvements in Fayetteville, and directing that more adequate plans be submitted within thirty days.
